Philosophy of Kant and Hegel, in Kantianism and More with Meta-Transcendental Stances with Deconstruction like Derrida

By Jean Hyppolite

I. Kant

In fact the transcendental inquiry, above empiricism.

II. Derrida

A type of la-langue meant to be translated more and more for Sirohi.

III. Deconstruction as Translation, Difference and even Arche

It is such themes to be covered in this Kantianism with Sirohi.

“I believe that the way one is working on old notebooks in school, with teachers talking is then how I express nowadays this whole philosophy, now I translate this in Derrida or Derridean ways, to be then la-langue is also fine and philosophical, and I mean now translate this someone –

Another person responds – to be dogmatic about victories in Communism is then fundamental, in this simple school way we learn, and It means Mao, that teachers are always correct. I mean such cool things as a joke from Mao – that poems are shared among the poor in schools which make them literate.”